

ANNOUNCING THE

ENERGY EFFICIENCY FELLOWS OF 2008-09

Mananya Chansanchai is a second-year MBA candidate at the UC Davis Graduate School of Management. In her first year of business school, she was a student representative of the UC Davis Building Energy and Environmental Research Association, bringing together current and future energy leaders to engage in professional networking and build campus branding for clean energy activity within the community. She also held Co-Director board positions on three student-led Clubs: Events for Challenge for Charity, Women in Leadership and Career Development for Net Impact. Mananya graduated from UC Santa Cruz with a B.A. in Business Management Economics and has a diverse background in the banking and hospitality industries. During her Summer MBA internship, Mananya worked at McKesson Corporation in its Business Technology Solutions group developing a business case management model for IT investments.

Jeff Gleeson is a second-year MBA student in the UC Davis Graduate School of Management. He is the Director of Marketing for the Associated Students of Management and the President/Director of Communications for the Davis Marketing Association. During his first year of business school, Jeff led a team of scientists and engineers to second-place in the biotechnology category of the Little Bang Competition – an achievement that took them to the semifinal round of the Big Bang Business Plan Competition. Jeff graduated from Cal Poly San Luis Obispo in 2006 with a B.S. in Civil Engineering with a dual emphasis in Water Resources and Transportation. After graduating from Cal Poly, he worked in the private sector as a civil engineering analyst. His work ranged from hands-on storm water treatment design to the procurement of federal funding for local transportation and "Safe Routes to School" projects. In the summer of 2008, Jeff worked as a marketing consultant for a clean-tech lighting company in the Bay Area. He is focusing his current research on marketing and strategic management.
